

Roanne Albertyn

Roanne Albertyn is a seasoned investment professional with deep expertise in renewable energy and infrastructure development across Africa. She currently serves as the Head of Investments, Africa at a leading renewable energy developer, where she is responsible for structuring and executing energy investments across multiple jurisdictions.

Prior to her current role, Roanne was a Partner and Investment Executive in private equity, with a focus on infrastructure and industrial growth sectors. Her professional journey reflects a strong track record in deal origination, project finance, and strategic investment management across emerging markets.

Born in Zimbabwe and currently based in Stellenbosch, South Africa, Roanne holds an MBA from Rhodes Business School and undergraduate degrees from UNISA. In addition to her corporate responsibilities, she is an active contributor to thought leadership within the African energy sector.

Roanne is a passionate traveller who has visited over 40 countries and continues to explore more. After her daughter's Primary Immunodeficiency (PID) diagnosis in 2019, she became active in-patient advocacy and has served on the board of PiNSA since 2024, promoting awareness and support for those with immune deficiencies.
